

A CHRIST-LIKE FATHER

In today's day and age, people emphasise Mother's Day more than Father's Day. But in the biblical context, the father figure is as important if not even more critical because we are called to be the head of the family. There are two points that I would like to share with you.

Be a Christ-like husband

We are first called to be a husband who leads his wife by loving and serving her, just like how our Lord Jesus Christ loved and died for the Church (Eph. 5). In this manner, the marriage portrays the relationship between Christ and the Church. Being a Christ-like husband will help the wife to be Christ-centred so that the gospel can be manifested. That is where our children feel safe and loved. That is the best that parents can provide for their children.

Gospelise our children

The top priority of concern and consideration for our children is their salvation, not their academics, skills, behavior or looks. It is true that salvation is of the Lord, but God entrusts children to parents to preach the Gospel to them in all kinds of situations and circumstances (Deut 6:6-7). Be intentional to grab hold of any opportunities to gospelise our children in sharing God's love and grace.

Happy and blessed Father's Day to all the fathers.

• EXPOSITORY BIBLE STUDY

We will be revising what we have studied so far in 1 John. We will also start on a new passage in 1 John 4:12-16. John reminds his readers that God as the object of Christian love is unseen (v. 12a), but adds that the practice of mutual love confirms the operation of God's love in our lives (v. 12b). In verses 13-16a John summarizes the grounds for assurance that believers have come to know personally the love of God. He mentions the divine gift of the Holy Spirit (v. 13), the apostolic testimony concerning God's saving work in Christ (v. 14), and the reality of the believer's fellowship with God (vv. 15-16a). God's love abiding in the believer promotes the consciousness of reciprocal love (v. 16b). We encourage as many of you who are available to join us online to learn these important truths.

Class starts at 8pm SHARP.
