

A BULLETPROOF MARRIAGE

Another workshop to teach us how to love and submit? Can it really change our marriages? The truth is, only God can change our marriages. This workshop points us to Him in order for our marriages to reflect Christ and the church.

A bulletproof marriage protects the husband and wife, as one, against the darts of the evil one. These darts can be very subtle, disguised as pride, peer pressure, or even human reasoning. The significance of the word 'bulletproof' became clearer as we went through the four-part workshop. Only Jesus can make our marriage bulletproof.

We were both blessed to be the first batch of mentees in this workshop, which was organised by the Family Life Ministry. Apart from gleaning truths from the Bible, we discovered new things about each other. One aspect we truly enjoyed was the breakout sessions with our assigned mentors. The discussions sparked conversations and revealed thoughts and feelings we would usually not talk about. We appreciate how our mentors spotted our blind spots and always pointed us back to the Gospel.

Another thing we like about this workshop - it does not limit the profile of participants. Your marriage will never be too young or too mature for this workshop (our marriage is only six years young). You may be an engaged couple, or perhaps in a relationship and curious to find out more about God's intended purpose for marriage.

One misconception is that only couples with issues attend marriage workshops. That's far from the truth, because no marriage is perfect. The Bulletproof workshop is not intended to produce perfect marriages, but to turn our eyes to a perfect Jesus as our motivation and example in living out a gospel-centred marriage.
