SECRETS OF A MAN'S HEART

Men tend to stay silent about many things, preferring to deal with issues alone rather than burdening their spouses.

While their intent may be good, it can also create misunderstanding and hurt. To avoid this, we need to reveal our heart's secrets to the woman we love.

While the intent may be good, it can also create misunderstanding and hurt. To avoid this, we need to reveal our heart's secrets to the woman we love.

Here are suggestions about how to share our most common struggles:

a. I need your respect and affirmation. I often hear your displeasure in my inability to lead and meet your expectations. You say that you vocalise these thoughts for my good, but the frequency of these words actually hurt and discourage me from wanting to lead. I wish you knew how I treasure the times when I saw your smile of approval and heard your words of encouragement. Your gracious acceptance of my leadership as a "fault-filled" man cheered me during very difficult times. I wish that you would continue doing this.

b. I have difficulty coming to terms with your frequent "hard" comments. I often wonder why these remarks hurt me so much. When casual friends utter them, though I may be upset, I get over them much more quickly. I have realised it is because they come from someone whom I have grown closer to over the years. Please guide me patiently.

c. I struggle with immoral temptations. I lied when you found me still awake in the middle of the night. Those were the times I was visiting prohibited websites. I really want to confide in you, but I am afraid that I would lose your respect and cease to be the man you look up to. Yet, I know I will need your help to conquer this.

d. I faced times when the financial burden became heavier than usual. Hearing you pray for me in those moments was reassuring. You never fail to bring me back to the simple first years of marriage when we had little. We faced those difficult days together with your gratefulness and laughter. I still recall your treasured statement, "I married you not for what you have, but for who you are." Until today, when I disappoint you, you would not fail to look for signs of my love for you.

Dear husbands, your wife cares for you. Open your heart to her. An effective helper needs to know her husband's deep concerns.
