SOME QUESTIONS ABOUT THE BULLETPROOF MARRIAGE WORKSHOP

“Why attend Bulletproof marriage workshop? You think my spouse will shoot me, is it?”

As one of the Bulletproof Marriage mentors, this question has always struck me as missing the target. The workshop’s aim is to build resilience in couples, to withstand spiritual assaults on their marriages.

There is no denying that we live in a modern and worldly society, one that has brought certain difficulties and temptations into marriage, and which Christians are not immune to. In the secular world, materialism is encouraged, with many pleasures, lawful or illicit, within reach. We have invariably heard of families which have been broken up by addictions, infidelity, abuse, financial issues, as well as differences in opinion or personalities. It seems like our instant gratification culture is telling us “Life is short. Do what makes you happy. If you’re not happy, just change”.

“So extreme, that will never happen to us”

This might be your reaction, but did you know that according to the Department of Statistics, Singapore’s divorce rate has increased more than seven-fold in the last thirty years? By year-end, there will be roughly 7,000 fewer married couples (some with children).

It is worthwhile to ask: are you and your spouse equipping yourselves to deal with the forces working against your marriage? If not, I would like to invite you to join the Bulletproof Marriage Workshop series in July.

The workshops began two years ago, shortly after the pandemic, to connect with, equip and strengthen couples in their marriages. The program has grown steadily, spread by word of mouth, and even attracted participants from outside the church, as well as overseas. To date, more than 120 couples have graduated, with a better understanding of what a Christ-centered marriage is. Some have salvaged relationships and stepped back from the precipice of separation. Some have newfound joy. All agreed it was a positive experience.

The program consists of four evening sessions, covering God’s intention for marriage, with an assigned marriage mentor couple journeying with you for some time. You can call on them should you ever encounter an issue in the future.

“Who should attend Bulletproof?”

Whether newly married or celebrating your diamond anniversary, whether trying to overcome marriage obstacles or enduring personal challenges, you are welcome to attend. Sessions are confidential, and there is no compulsion to share details. Consider this a spiritual tune-up and a way to strengthen your marriage.

If you are led to find out more, please do not hesitate to reach out. Looking forward to seeing you at the workshop!
