INTO A LIFE-CHANGING
RELATIONSHIP WITH JESUS CHRIST.

Love Your Spouse God's Way

Pastor Nazario Sinon
Filipino Congregation

A middle-aged husband sat before me, distraught. His marriage was falling apart, and after two hours of conversation, we hit a dead end. He stared blankly into the distance, seemingly lost in his thoughts. Breaking the silence, I asked him, "Since you knew about your wife's issues before you married her, why did you go through with it?"

He shook his head and sighed, "I thought I could change her."

His problem was foundational.

In almost every wedding ceremony, we hear the vows: man and woman promising to love each other unconditionally—“for better or worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health, until death do us part.” Yet, tragically, in many marriages, these promises begin to fade in just a few short years. Why? Because, too often, they stem from insincere hearts.

“Marriage is a lifelong commitment—no “return or exchange” policy, no fine print with an expiration date.”

Marriage vows do not come with conditions or “ifs.” They are not transactional agreements; they are a covenant—a solemn promise—between a man and a woman to love each other unconditionally. God’s design for marriage is clear: the two must “leave” their parents and “hold fast” to each other (Genesis 2:24). This is not a decision to take lightly. Marriage is a lifelong commitment—no “return or exchange” policy, no fine print with an expiration date.

But some might ask, “What if they married young and made a mistake in choosing their spouse?” Even then, their union is final. Once a man marries his wife, it is his responsibility to guard their relationship and nurture it, strengthening it day by day. As Jesus says, “What therefore God has joined together, let not man separate” (Matthew 19:6).

When a man marries, he must accept his spouse as she is. Marriage is not a mistake, although both partners will make mistakes. Having a wife is like receiving a special gift from God, wrapped in layers. Each day, as God reveals more of who she is, the husband’s adventure of unconditional love continues. Her imperfections may surprise him, but they should never lead to regret. He must have already embraced these quirks before discovering them. Perhaps the saying “love is blind” holds more truth than we realize.

From the very beginning, an unmarried believer should approach marriage with a commitment to love their spouse unconditionally. After all, isn't this the kind of love that fosters the "naked and unashamed" relationship that God intended? (Genesis 2:25)

In every marriage, there will always be faults to uncover and countless reasons to walk away. Yet, when a couple builds a relationship founded on honesty, humility, and forgiveness, their bond will flourish. There is no greater key to a thriving marriage. After all, doesn't Jesus love the Church despite her imperfections?
