INTO A LIFE-CHANGING
RELATIONSHIP WITH JESUS CHRIST.

4 Perspectives for Relationships at Work

Article by Elder Frederick Chew,
Chairman, Church Committee

Workplace relationships can be challenging, but as Christians, we are called to view these interactions through the lens of faith. By embracing our call as ambassadors for Christ, we can honor God in our interactions with our bosses, peers and subordinates. Here are 4 perspectives we need to make our workplaces our mission field.

1. Freedom in Christ: The Foundation of Our Work

“Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men..” (Col. 3:23)

Before delving into workplace relationships, it's important to remember the freedom we have in Christ. We learned that, as believers, we are no longer slaves to human masters or the idol of success. Our true master is God, and our work is carried out as an offering to Him. This freedom allows us to approach work with a new heart, doing the right thing for God, not for personal gain, and seeking heavenly rewards, not in promotions or salary.

“According to a poll I conducted previously, many had mixed feelings about their supervisors. Do remember that Scripture calls us to submit to authority out of reverence for God.”

2. Interacting with Bosses: A Call to Humility and Submission

“Bondservants, obey in everything those who are your earthly masters, not by way of eye-service, as people-pleasers, but with sincerity of heart, fearing the Lord.” (Col. 3:22)

One of the most challenging relationships in the workplace is with our bosses. According to a poll I conducted previously, many had mixed feelings about their supervisors. Do remember that Scripture calls us to submit to authority out of reverence for God. In Colossians 3:22-24, Paul urges us to work as if serving the Lord, with sincerity and humility. This means that, even during the moments when our bosses are difficult, we are called to honor them by serving with integrity, praying for them, and avoiding gossip or disrespect. By doing so, we reflect Christ and submit willingly, as He did.

3. Building Positive Relationships with Peers: Cooperation Over Competition

“In the same way, let your light shine before others, so that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father who is in heaven.” (Mat. 5:16)

The workplace can be a place of competition, but as Christians, we are called to a higher standard. As God enables, we should support and serve our peers. Our conduct should serve as a witness for Jesus, even in challenging situations. By living out our faith through our actions, we can be “counter-cultural” and have the opportunity to point our peers to Christ (Matt 5:16).

4. Leading with Integrity: Imbibing Servant Leadership with our Subordinates

“But whoever would be great among you must be your servant, and whoever would be first among you must be your slave...” (Mat. 20:26)

For those in leadership positions, relationships with subordinates are crucial. Scripture teaches that authority comes from God, and we are to lead with uprightness and humility. Servant leadership includes using our position to bless and develop others, plus investing in their growth both professionally and personally. Whether leading a team or managing subordinates, we should lead with integrity and grace, focusing on others' development and wellbeing.

Lasting Impact

As we move forward, let's reflect on how we can be salt and light at our workplaces. By submitting to authority, supporting and serving our peers, as well as leading with a servant's heart, we can brighten the work environments that we've been placed in. May we be empowered by grace to make a lasting impact for God in all that we do.

APPOINTMENT OF MISSIONS PASTOR - JOSEPH HO

The GLCC Board of Elders conducted a thorough examination of Joseph Ho on February 1 and affirmed his qualifications for appointment as a Missions Pastor.

His character and calling align with the biblical requirements outlined in 1 Timothy and Titus.

Joseph is a retired banker with a rich cultural background as a Peranakan and fluency in the Malay language. This naturally led him to serve in GLCC's Bahasa Ministry. Over the past 37 years, he has contributed to various ministries, including Ushering, serving as Church Committee Secretary, and facilitating Seekers and New Believers sessions.

During his studies in the Master of Ministry (MMin) program at APIIS, Joseph discerned a calling to serve in missions, particularly in Indonesia. He has since become an active member of GLCC's Missions team while continually honing his Bahasa proficiency. Notably, he maintains a regular preaching schedule with an Indonesian (Batak) church in Singapore.

His passion for ministry extends beyond Singapore. For the past year, Joseph has been training Indonesian intern pastors at the APIIS Training Center in Sumatra. As part of his continued commitment to nurturing church leaders, he will be facilitating the pilot batch of the APIIS MMin program, which will equip 50 Indonesian pastors and leaders.

We rejoice in Joseph's appointment as Missions Pastor and pray for God's abundant grace and guidance as he continues to serve faithfully in this new role.
