Holy Hustle: Why Your Job Matters To God

Article by Nazario Sinon
Pastor, Filipino Congregation

Labor Day is often seen as a time to reflect on the work we do and the challenges we face in our jobs. It's not uncommon to hear frustrations about difficult bosses, toxic work environments, or grueling hours. Yet work itself is not the problem. The truth is that ever since the fall of Adam, humanity has had to grapple with “thorns and thistles” in life just to survive (Genesis 3:18).

Was Work Cursed?

Did God curse work after Adam's failure? Definitely not. When Adam sinned, God did not annul His command for him to "be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth" (Genesis 1:28). Theologians refer to this as the "cultural mandate." Adam still had to support his family, but now the ground was cursed because of him (Genesis 3:17). As a result, he had to endure pain and hard labor in order to eat.

So what should we expect when a group of sinful people work together? Naturally, there will be ugly jostling and self-promotion—it's common, isn't it? Indeed, the problem with this "rat race" society is that even if you win, you're still a rat.

“Whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God”

What Makes Work Holy?

But this should not be true of us—the redeemed people of God. We are exhorted that, “Whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God” (1 Corinthians 10:31). Paul gives a similar instruction in his letter to the Colossians:

“Whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through Him” (Colossians 3:17).

It’s clear that it is not the type of work that makes a person holy or acceptable before God. Are those in full-time Christian ministry better than the vast majority working in offices or marketplaces? Is the preacher holier than the mechanic?

Work as Worship

We need a paradigm shift in how we value work—because of the gospel. As recipients of God’s mercy, Paul pleads with us to “present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual worship” (Romans 12:1).

Therefore, we should not view work merely as a means to an end—or as the end itself. In other words, we don’t work just to pay the bills, earn a pension, fund our kids’ education, support the church, or even to find personal fulfillment. While these are valid, our highest aim is much nobler: we work for God and His glory. It’s the work itself—not just the outcome or the benefits—that matters.

No Sacred-Secular Divide

Is there a divide between the secular and the sacred? Not for those who belong to Christ. Our bodies are not our own; they were bought at a price and are now temples of the Holy Spirit (1 Corinthians 6:19–20). Every aspect of our lives must be devoted to His glory.

This makes sense when we consider:

“For from Him and through Him and to Him are all things. To Him be the glory forever. Amen.” (Romans 11:36)

That truth should move us to see all our work—whatever form it takes—as holy unto the Lord.

BIBLICAL COUNSELLING MINISTRY

STRUGGLING WITH DEPRESSION OR ANXIETY?
MARITAL ISSUES?
SAME SEX ATTRACTION?
ANGER MANAGEMENT?
ADDICTIONS?

We live in a fallen world—and even God’s people are not spared from the effects of sin, pain, and struggle. But you don’t have to walk through it alone.

Biblical counseling is a safe, gospel-centered space to find help, hope, and clarity through God’s Word. It isn’t about fixing people—it’s about walking with one another in truth and grace. If you’re carrying anxiety, grief, relational tension, or just feeling stuck, you’re not weak—and you’re not the only one.
