INTO A LIFE-CHANGING
RELATIONSHIP WITH JESUS CHRIST.

Called to Honour: A Husband's Holy Charge

Article by Elder Jeffrey Pang

“Likewise, husbands, live with your wives in an understanding way, showing honour to the woman as the weaker vessel, since they are heirs with you of the grace of life, so that your prayers may not be hindered.”

— 1 Peter 3:7 (ESV)

1 Peter calls believers to live holy lives as citizens of heaven, not of this world. That call begins at home. So when Peter addresses husbands in 1 Peter 3:7, it's not just marriage advice—it's a charge to embody holiness in the most personal of relationships.

“Peter turns his attention to husbands, urging them to live with their wives in an “understanding way” and to “show honour” to them.”

Peter turns his attention to husbands, urging them to live with their wives in an “understanding way” and to “show honour” to them. These are not surface-level gestures of politeness—they are deep, Spirit-empowered commitments that reflect the heart of Christ. For God's chosen people, even the most private relationships must be shaped by holiness. A husband's role, then, is not about cultural norms, convenience, or personal temperament. It is a spiritual calling to reflect God's kingdom in the home.

In a world where husbands held unquestioned authority and often used it to control or demean, Peter's words are radical.

He calls for empathy and honour. Living in an “understanding way” means seeking to truly know your wife—her thoughts, struggles, strengths, and needs—and treating her with attentive care. It means creating space for her voice, her growth, and her flourishing. Honour is not just respect—it is a posture of lifting her up in word, action, and attitude.

The phrase “as the weaker vessel” does not imply inferiority in worth, intellect, or spiritual standing. Rather, it likely acknowledges physical differences or social vulnerability that women faced in that era. But instead of exploiting that, the husband is called to respond with gentleness, strength, and sacrificial leadership—just as Christ honours those the world considers weak.

Peter anchors all this in a profound truth: “they are heirs with you of the grace of life.” This is a stunning theological affirmation. In a world that diminished women, the gospel lifts them up as co-heirs of eternal life. Christian husbands must live in light of that truth—recognising that their wives are not beneath them, but beside them in God's redemptive story.

And Peter doesn't stop there. He ends the verse with a sobering consequence: "so that your prayers may not be hindered." How a husband treats his wife has spiritual ramifications. A life of prayer cannot flourish in a home where honour and understanding are absent. Holiness at home and communion with God are deeply connected.

As God's people, we are called to live differently. That difference must be most evident where we are most known—in our marriages. 1 Peter 3:7 reminds us that a husband's calling is not about status, but service. Not about control, but Christlike care. This is what it means to be holy in the home—and to bear the mark of God's kingdom in even the quietest corners of our lives.
